TRYING TO HELP THE SCIENTISTS.

There are some peculiar readings in the make up of the basin that furnish instructive lessons when read and understood. There is boldness and distinctiveness in some of these lessons that is wonderful when the facts they contain are applied to the earth and the little there is known about its history.

It may not be out of place for an editor of a democratic newspaper to make a slight reference to some of these peculiar readings, but he desires it to be understood that he enters upon the work such as it will be with a full conviction that it was a popular impression twenty or thirty years ago that a Democrat was a very incapable person when anything that included mental work was a theme for consideration, more especially was it so when political questions were subjects for investigation.

Whatever is said in this article will not be political which may aid the writer to make a few suggestions without fear and trembling. Ten or twelve years ago Professor Winchell of the State University of Michigan published a work on geology which he termed "Waikes and Talks." Among the many interesting facts stated by the Professor which were instructive to a novice in the science of geology, he said that about 1870 was beginning to believe that there was a long period of time when comparative quiet was upon the earth.

The purpose in what may be said will be to ascertain if there is anything in the basin that would aid the scientists in their beginning belief about a period of comparative quiet on the earth. The writer had concluded fifteen years preceding the time heretofore "Waikes and Talks" that such a period had been upon the earth.
In the northern part of Spanish Springs valley north of Reno Mrs.
Carroll, a woman who for use at her station on the road made a well two hundred feet deep or thereabouts.
When the well was made there was large stones or rocks on the surface of the ground, these rocks in fact for a few feet below the surface of the earth and thereafter disappeared.

From the point of disappearance there was not even a pebble found in the earth taken from the well. The writer questioned the men engaged in digging the well and made a personal examination of the material taken out for the purpose of ascertaining the truth respecting the phenomenon but he failed to ascertain that a pebble had made an appearance after the disappearance of the surface rocks.

Soil only of the finest quality was taken out when making the well. The excavation was made near to the foothills adjoining the valley on the north, which accounts for rocks being on the ground surface to a depth of two or three feet, but the absence of rocks for a depth of two hundred feet is made the more strange by their presence on the surface of the ground. A problem arises upon the absence and presence of rocks that could be explained by a history of the facts and conditions, were they in our possession as they occurred.

The detached rocks from the nearby hills did not get to where the well was made without the aid of force, which must have been furnished through natural causes operating upon the ground surface. These forces must have been different from the forces that preceded them, when the valley was filled with fine earth. There was a time when a lake not less than four hundred feet deep covered Spanish Springs Valley. Then the hills that surround it were much higher than they are now, as the valley has been made of decomposed matter that came from them, which increased opportunity for detached rocks to fall into the ancient lake to make an appearance in excavations made in the valley at this time.

The absence of rocks to so great a depth near to the hills has an explanation in conditions present at the time the valley was receiving the material that made it. And it been that like forces were present upon the earth's surface that are now present, there would have been rocks in abundance all the way down, very much after the manner they now appear upon and near to the surface of the earth.

A solution of the problem is in properly determining of the facts.
What explanation can be made of this

THE MINING OUTLOOK

Although the snow still mantles the landscape and little or no work can be done on the mines and claims around Reno, mining experts and possible purchasers are already as thick as fall leaves at Villambrosa. Several sales are on and indications are that a number of properties will change hands within the next month or two.

The ore reducing plants are still idle—not for lack of ore, however.
The third plant, that of the Volcan Smelting Company, is still in the air, but has taken tangible shape. When these establishments get down to business Reno will be a bustling burg.

Two Renoites Take the Vows.

The JOURNAL's office sat, which usually exults upon spring poems and duns, has again disgraced itself by misquoting local manuscript. Either this fellow or some cause unknown is to blame for the disappearance of a write-up of a marriage that was prepared for the JOURNAL several days ago.

T. S. Wendt and Miss Lizzie Boland, both of whom you know or ought to know, got married down in San Francisco last Wednesday evening. These estimable young people will continue to reside in Reno and Mr. Wendt will continue at his old position with J. N.
Bakelaar, the grocer. Related congratulations are herewith extended.

It is reported that $300,000 has been offered for mining claims at Tonopah.

Work of boring for coal at the Columbus coal mines has been temporarily discontinued. Scarcity of water for the diamond drill, and the porous character of the ground are assigned as the causes.

The manufacture of Nevada borax is a simple process. "Gottonballs" in the eastern Nevada salt marsh valleys are found three inches under the soil. They average four inches in diameter and are scraped into a wagon.
At the works they are put into vats and boiled with soda, the water run off into settling tanks, the borax crys-tallizing on the sides and bottoms and on suspended zinc plates.

GRAND JURY REPORT

If its Recommendations are Carried out Reno Will Become Moral.

The grand jury's report, which was filed last evening, is an exceedingly interesting document, and if space permitted would appear in full.
True bills were found as follows: Peter Nelson, James Madison and E. Smith, burglary; Walter Timblin, grand larceny; Leo Buncel, arson; Charles Dyer, felony.
The committee on public buildings speaks of the calaboose as a disgrace to Reno. It recommends that a two-story thirty-foot extension be built to the court house and certain structures be erected at the county hospital.
Not a word of criticism and few of comment were made regarding county officers.
The jury ascertained that until very recently lottery tickets were sold in Washoe county. The officers were enjoined to arrest ticket vendors without waiting for complaints.
It also became cognizant of the fact that certain business houses which do not pay liquor license retail intoxicants. The sheriff was directed to look into this matter.
The jury came out very strongly in the matter of the tenderloin hangouts. The officers were most emphatically asked to rid the town of this species of filth.
The report ended with an assurance that the Floriston Pulp and Paper Company would cease turning impurities into the Truckee.

STEAMBOAT ITEMS

Interesting Correspondence from the South End of the County.

The Crane mine, east of the Springs, will resume operations at once. The first check for $1000, to pay operating expenses, has arrived. This lead was found in the '70's. From a width of 2 1/2 feet on the surface, assaying from $35 down, it grew to 4 feet in eight feet deep, and improved in values.
Then a 300 foot tunnel was run eight years later, without striking the lead. The present work will be done upon a 40 foot parallel low grade ledge.
James Berk, owner of a promising claim near the foot of Geiger grade, will shortly begin shipping ore. The rock will be used as flux. It is limestone and carries $2 in gold and a small percent of quicksilver.
The prospects for water the coming season are all edge. There will be all the farmers want and plenty to spare for miners.
Hay is about all fed out and all the stock is shipped away. Splendid prices were received.
E. O. Crane of this place is probably the largest honey producer in Nevada. He has over seven hundred stands of bees.

If you got your price, leave the State with it. Nevada may bear her disgrace, but not the author of it.

Renoite Dies of Heart Failure.

Mrs. Mary Ede of this city died at Gold Creek, Elko county, on February 9, after a brief illness. Heart disease was the cause of her death. She was a native of Maine and was aged 47 years.
The remains have been brought to the residence of her brother, 423 Third street. The funeral will take place from there at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Mrs. Ede was well known in this city. She was a woman of sterling qualities. She is survived by her mother, who resides in Sierra Valley.
